

FEVER MODEL OF A REVOLUTION

UNIT 5 KICKS OFF WITH REVOLUTIONS 1774-1800. ONE WAY TO LOOK AT THESE IS TO VIEW THEM THROUGH THE METAPHOR OF A DISEASE FROM CANE BRITON'S ANATOMY OF A REVOLUTION (1965)

FEVER MODEL

MEDICAL DESCRIPTION

REVOLUTION DESCRIPTION

1. INCUBATION STAGE

This stage in an illness is when the cause of the sickness first comes into contact with the individual, infecting them, but not yet causing any symptoms to present themselves.

2. SYMPTOMATIC STAGE

This stage in when sickness starts to affect the person in observable ways. Temperature may rise. A cough may present itself. The individual might become weak, tired, or queasy.

3. CRISIS STAGE

This is the critical stage of an illness where two things can happen. The person either breaks the fever & get better or they get worse and never recover.

4. CONVALESCENCE

This stage involves recovering from the illness. The individual might be weakened from the experience, but they eventually emerge healthy & able to prevent future illness.

THE POLITICAL, SOCIAL, ECONOMIC, INTELLECTUAL CAUSES. THESE CAUSES COULD FESTER FOR YEARS BEFORE MANIFESTING IN ANY ACTION.

THE STAGE WITH DIRECT ACTION STEMMING FROM THE CAUSES. THIS COULD BE PUBLICATION OF WORKS, RIOTS, OR ANY DIRECT ATTEMPT AT CHANGE.

THE REVOLUTION IS IN FULL SWING. USUALLY INVOLVING DIRECT CONFLICTS RANGING FROM DEBATE TO WAR. (SUCCESSFUL REVOLUTIONS SURVIVE THIS STAGE.)

THIS STAGE IS ALL ABOUT RECOVERY FROM THE CRISIS. THE CAUSES FROM STAGE 1 MUST BE ADDRESSED IN SOME WAY, THOUGH NOT NECA
